

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

As a defense business contract administrator I see the divisiveness of airing the "Stolen Honor" program. It will, in my eyes, incite chaos and anger between those who understand the underlying agenda. It will jeopardize the already fragile safety net upon which American people are hopeful by a deceitful presentation geared out of meanness.

I see that the Crawford newspaper is going out of business for it's stance against President Bush. Where are people with integrity? Is that what will happen to stations who do not air this program?

Don't bring down homeland security, internally within the United States by allowing a non-documentary smear program to air.

Don't let the Bush administration go down in history as starting an internal war or uprising in The United States.

Thank you.
